RECENT LEGAL OPINIONS.

-A Libelous Will .-An exceedingly peculiar case was before the Orphans' Court, of Pittsburg, Pa., recently, for decision. It was shown that the will of a minister contained a statement to the effect that one Brady had received over $3,000 from the testator for clothing, maintenance, education, etc., and had promised to repay it, but had not paid a dollar, and that the testator had no intention of releasing said debt, and had bequeathed the same to two friends to collect for their own use. Brady, who is a lawyer in Cleveland, thereupon filed a peti-Superior Court, Room 3, and Judge Leath- | tion asking that the estate be held responsible for the libel in the sum of $50,000. A demurrer was filed, because of the minister's death, but the court overruled the demurrer, holding that the right of action did not abate with the death of the testator, because it had not accrued until after the death and publication of his will. The action certainly seems to be without precedent. [The American Lawyer.]
